LAST NIGHT'S OPENING.

A CAPITAL SHOW.

Though the boat that brought them up here from Singapore only arrived during the late afternoon the ' Powder Puffs" were able to get things sufficiently ship shape to put on a very bright little show at the Theatre Roya last night. The audience was quite a good one and it was markedly appreciative. There are nine members of the com-and the hardest worker of them all was certainly Mr. Bert Hamill who was chiefly responsible for the distinot success which last night's preformance achieved. He is a clever humourist with a style humour that the audience found more and more to their fancy as the programme proceeded and they got to know him better. #### AVEBURY CIRCLES.

THE TRACE OF NEOLITHIC

There can be little doubt that Avobury, wi h its circles, fosse, and vallem, is referable to the late Neolithic period. This belief has been austained by the exidence covered by five seasons of excavation from the Theatre; Special Dance. year 1908, writes a correspondent in the Observer. There was a long cessation of activities at Avebury, caused by the war but the excavatione, conducted under the general direction, of the Stone Circles Committee of the British Association were costinued and completed last April. The Committ e naturally has had changes from time to time during the twenty-three years of its existence, Co., Ltd., ordinary general meeting. - but the chairman, Sir Hercul-s Read, Company's offices, 20 Des Voeux Road and the secretary, Mr. Henry Balfour, Central, noon. have been its most active members | October 12 .- Dairy Farm, Ice and since its formation; and Mr. H. Moora (1905, 1906).

Thirteen men were employed last April in the re-excavation of the great fosse at Avebury (the fosse is inside, the vallum outside), on the East side of the Kennet Causeway, or southern ancient entrance of Avebury, which was proved in 1909. Not only were the solid chalk escarp a d counterscarp of the fosse exposed, but the whele of the solid termination of the causeway. This immense fosse had been partly re-excavated in 1914. when owing to danger to children animals, it had fenced in, and it was only during the spring that this work could be completed. During the time which elapsed a large amount of talus had formed. It was intend ed to measure this with a view of determining at about what rate these chalk ditches silted up from natural causes; but the value of calculations was greatly lessened for during the interval of eight years the villagers found the "hole" an attractive dump for their broken crockery, worn-out domestic utensils and rubbish. It took the greater part of the first week to remove this rubbish and the eight years' accumulation of silting. The dimensions of the force in this day viz : 31st a Constant Supply was position proved to be enormous. The lower part of the "walls" of the ditch near the causeway was very steep, but the most extraordinary feature of construction was the unevenness of the bottom floor, which, in the length of 251ft. exposed this season, rose from West to East to the extent of 71st. In the five fosse cuttings made at Avebury since 1908 the fluor varied in level to the extent of light, and there was a gradual rise from West to East. RELICS IN FLOOR OF FOSSE.

The floor of the fosse was again found to be strewer with picks, hammers, levers, etc., of red deer antler, Struthers and Barry. but no prehictoric pottery was found at greater depth than 61ft., the Ro- undelivered after October 8 will be subman remains ceasing at 31it. below the surface.
